Black Literature Curriculum

Board Approved: July 2021

Course Rationale

It is critical that all students continue to build their literacy skills that are taught through their K-12 formal education and beyond. Within this course, students will be exposed to many literary works including fiction, non-fiction, poetry, and other genres of literature to acquire an appreciation of Black Literature. Students will explore the identity and intersectionality of Black Literature in a course that focuses on and celebrates the many contributions of Black authors to literature. Through the study of many literary works through a variety of methods and media, students will gain an understanding of themselves as well as an understanding of others. This course will provide students with the ability to better understand their own cultural backgrounds as well as the similarities and differences of their own culture and that of the Black identity and culture from around the world.

Course Description

This course will focus on contemporary and multi-genre literary works of Black authors and will celebrate the dignity and identity of Black voices. Students will examine Black literary tradition and explore how it shapes both the reader's understanding of their own identity as well as an understanding of others. This course will allow students choice in reading books centered on specific themes. Through the exploration of Black Literature with close readings of selected literary works, students will increase their development of literary and analytical skills while exploring the cultural identity of themselves and others. This course will include various genres of writing in response to the literary works. In addition, students will engage in research, speaking, listening and presenting in order to develop a deeper understanding of society. Throughout this course, students will grow as public speakers and presenters of information. The goal of this course is to allow students opportunities to read texts that further their understanding of their identity, as well as deepen their awareness and understanding of Black people's cultures and identities.

Curriculum Notes

All FHSD performance tasks and sample learning activities are aligned not only to understandings and standards, but also the Rigor and Relevance Framework and 21st Century Skills. Information on these two things is provided below or by clicking on the hyperlinks.

Rigor and Relevance Framework

The Rigor/Relevance Framework is a tool developed by the International Center to examine curriculum, instruction, and assessment along the two dimensions of higher standards and student achievement.

The Rigor/Relevance Framework has four quadrants.

Quadrant A represents simple recall and basic understanding of knowledge for its own sake. Examples of Quadrant A knowledge are knowing that the world is round and that Shakespeare wrote Hamlet.

Quadrant C represents more complex thinking but still knowledge for its own sake. Quadrant C embraces higher levels of knowledge, such as knowing how the U.S. political system works and analyzing the benefits and challenges of the cultural diversity of this nation versus other nations.

Quadrants B and D represent action or high degrees of application. Quadrant B would include knowing how to use math skills to make purchases and count change. The ability to access information in wide-area network systems and the ability to gather knowledge from a variety of sources to solve a complex problem in the workplace are types of Quadrant

D knowledge.

Α	В	С	D
Students gather and store bits of knowledge and information. Students are primarily expected to remember or understand this knowledge.	Students use acquired knowledge to solve problems, design solutions, and complete work. The highest level of application is to apply knowledge to new and unpredictable situations.	Students extend and refine their acquired knowledge to be able to use that knowledge automatically and routinely to analyze and solve problems and create solutions.	Students have the competence to think in complex ways.

FHSD Academics-SLj Black Literature

21st Century Skills

These skills have been pared down from 18 skills to what are now called the 4Cs. The components include critical thinking, communication, collaboration, and creativity. Critical thinking is focused, careful analysis of something to better understand and includes skills such as arguing, classifying, comparing, and problem solving. Communication is the process of transferring a thought from one mind to others and receiving thoughts back and includes skills such as choosing a medium (and/or technology tool), speaking, listening, reading, writing, evaluating messages. Collaboration is working together with others to achieve a common goal and includes skills such as delegating, goal setting, resolving conflicts, team building, decision-making, and managing time. Creativity is expansive, open-ended invention and discovery of possibilities and includes skills such as brainstorming, creating, designing, imagining, improvising, and problem-solving.

Unit: 1	Collaborative Discourse in the Classroom: Establishing a Learning Community Unit One will be an introductory unit to the course. It will help students understand the importance of this class, and help establish a learning community. Students will spend time reflecting on their own culture and identity. Within this unit, all students will learn technical terms and background knowledge necessary for engaging in this class. Students will learn how to have critical conversations with one another while still honoring one another's dignity.	The performance task for Unit One will involve students participating in collaborative discussions in the classroom around difficult topics and will allow students to highlight all that they have learned about how to prepare, plan, engage, and reflect on these conversations with peers while honoring all students' dignities. Unit:3	An Exploration of Black Identities through Literature In this unit, students will select a book of their choice from the options provided that centers on the complexity of Black Identities. Students will read and respond to their selected text and engage in collaborative discussions with peers about the exploration and understandings about Black Identities as presented within the text selections. After reading a book and several text selections around exploring Black Identities, students will create a response either for themselves or for a targeted area of their community for an intended purpose.	After reading, a variety of texts as well as a book that is student selected and centers on the complexity of Black Identities the students will reflect on what their learning about Black Identities through the texts explored in class. Unit 4: The Power of Black Voices

Content Area: English Language Arts	Course: Black Literature	UNIT: 4:The Power of Black Voices

Unit Description:

In this unit, students will select and explore the power of Black Voices through the lens of multiple perspectives to create a product for a specific audience using a variety of mediums. Students will examine and track the change of a societal topic over a span of time that will lead to suggestions and recommendations for positive change(s) within society.

Unit Timeline:

4 Weeks

DESIRED Results

Transfer Goal - Students will be able to independently use their learning to...

Understand the importance of the art of storytelling and to appreciate the diversity and commonality of human experiences.

Understandings – Students will understand that... (Big Ideas)

- 1. The power of using voice, in a variety of ways, to create positive change.
- 2. The ebbs and flow of societal issues influence a variety of factors.
- 3. Perspectives and experiences are shared through different avenues.
- 4. Reflection on the past is necessary to create change for future generations.

Essential Questions: Students will keep considering...

- How and why does change occur?
- Why is it important to reflect on where we have been and where we are going?
- How have Black Voices affected change in different avenues of society?
- Why is it important to acknowledge diverse perspectives within the Black Community?
